By ORVILLE GANTON

Returning to their early season form, Cardinals slapped Phi Osborne's slants for ten runs Tuesday to cop the first of the finals with a 10-2 victory. It was the eighth time these clubs have met this season; Cardinals have won five and Orioles three. Marg Hisey was in fine mettle and the whole team fielded well behind her.

Donna Mackenzie, who has played a bang-up game at first all season, was moved to left field. Cardinals were terrific with the timber while Orioles seemed to have slumped badly in their hitting.

Still outwardly as sound as ever, it has walls 13 inches thick, made of three rows of brick believed to have come from the Stickwood brick yards in Newmarket. The beams and planking are hand-hewn, with the mark of adze still on them. Plaster was laid directly on the brick interior and at one time, must have been a chocolate

An early notice in the registry office, dated 1878, records the fact that the Newmarket high school board of the "village of Newmarket," handed back the property to the Crown. The same year, the land was granted to Rosanna Keetch who later and it was from them that Mr. Boag purchased the property.

It is uncertain when the building was erected but Sir William attended school there in 1850 at the age of seven. It has 18-inch plastered gables extending outside the walls and the interior of the ceiling, where it meets the walls, is gently rounded. A chimney is built in the wall at the north end, the flue measuring five inches by 18 inches. Some of the planks inside the building measure as wide as 24 inches and are eight feet long.

Stan. Sheridan, carpenter in charge of the work, estimates that the cost of erecting such a building under present conditions would be in the neighborhood of $15,000.

Mr. Boag purchased the corner lot when he found he would require more ground about the old. Oddfellows' hall, the upper story of which he is turning into four apartments. He has extended the old schoolhouse north and combining old and new buildings into apartments.

DIRECTION NEEDED IN TOWN PLANNING

There has never been any plan to the development of Newmarket. Like Topsy, it has just "growed." The railway followed the river valley. The industries located near it and the waterway. Merchants built on the main highway and the homes of the residents were built with an eye only to personal convenience. Municipal buildings were situated where they would best serve the needs of their day. There was little if any thought to the future.

There has been little change. There is still no definite policy of town planning. There is this difference between the present and the past, however, in that there is now no excuse for the lack of attention to this important need. In the day of the horse and buggy, the motor car was inconceivable. In the day of the general store, the modern market was unknown. We have become accustomed to progress but apparently we have yet to learn to plan for the demands of progress.

Newmarket shows many results from the lack of planned development. That would be expected. But to continue to add to those faults is unforgivable. The latest example to be added to a long list is the town's inaction in the sale of the north-west corner of Main and Water Sts. to an oil firm. Presumably the firm will erect a service station there. As we have said before, it is an ideal location. The use of the property for that purpose, however, would be another complication to the widening of Main St., it would lower the value of the adjoining property, and it would lose forever to the town a valuable site which in time, might be included in the making of a continued park space from the C.N.R. tracks to the western end of Lions club park.

Because there has been no direction in the buying and selling of town property, the municipality has lost many opportunities. The sale of the land north of market square to a business concern has prevented any expansion of the market area. The sale of the lot at the rear of the municipal building at Main and Botsford Sts. has prevented any further use of that corner. If this continues, where does the town ever expect to erect the public buildings an architect has been asked to sketch out?

There is not much that can be done about the market square and adjacent properties, but there is still time to save the site at the north-west corner of Main and Water Sts. A municipal ordinance restricting the use of the property can be passed without any further loss of time. It is a matter of immediate concern to the council. Nor will it be enough to pass legislation applying to one site only. The application of town planning to Newmarket must become a fact and with it, a body of legislation protecting and providing for the carrying out of a long-range plan must be placed on the books.

SALES TAX NOT RIGHT ANSWER

A few weeks ago, there appeared in these columns a summary of an argument in favor of keeping a combined corporation tax of 30 to 40 percent while reducing or lifting other forms of taxation as the best means of meeting the Canadian post-war budget. J. L. McDougall of the school of commerce and administration, Queen's University, is in disagreement with this thesis. He stated hefore the taxation conference of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association that the most effective means of taxation would be a greatly enlarged sales tax.

He said: "This is a tax which has in the past been under criticism as being sharply regressive. It falls heavily upon the poor. But if you have a social security system in which the basic necessities are guaranteed by unemployment insurance and the baby bonus and if personal in-Come tax at existing rates encourages people to lay off rather than to work for more money, it may be that the sales tax has defences much stronger than it had in the 1920's when income tax rates and governmental needs were both much lower."

The basic principle of taxation is to charge according to the ability to pay. For Mr. Mc-Dougall to argue the virtues of the sales tax on the grounds that those who would feel it most are protected by a "social security system" seems to contradict this principle. The measures of the social security system were introduced to meet real needs. Taxation on the grounds that these measures will protect the taxee is to negate the value of the legislation.

Mr. McDougall reaches the conclusion that the sales tax is the only means of taxation which can meet the post-war budget because he can find no valid reason for the continuance of other forms of taxation. Without mentioning the possibility of a continuing high income tax (it appears to be generally agreed that the income tax must be reduced as peacetime products become available), Mr. McDougall points out that customs taxes provide only a small part of the national revenue, and argues that a continuing heavy corporation taxation will have a detrimental effect on indus-

"Corporate income is, in a sense, not income at all," he states. "It becomes income to a person only when it is paid out in dividends." The heavy corporate income taxation lowers the amount paid out and "reduces the supply of venture capital and discourages the investment of what remains in anything at all risky." A second disadvantage to corporation taxation is the exemption from corporate income taxes had by publicly-owned corporations. If such a condition is allowed to continue, he warns, "large parts of Canadian enterprise are going to be reorganized (into publicly-owned corporations) for the sole purpose of evading taxes."

We believe that Mr. McDougall over-emphasizes the dangers of corporation taxation. The excess profits tax less refundable portion, and corporation income taxes including the minimum tax under the excess profits tax act totalled of good cooking. Her meals rounded Churchill and Roosevelt 26.2 percent of the 1944 national revenue. Personal income taxes brought in 27 percent. A reduction in income tax of 50 percent, the reduction of corporation income taxes including minimum tax under excess profits tax way of unexpected guests; her ruthlessness added surrounded act of 30 percent, and the lifting of excess profits tax would have reduced 1944 national revenues of two billion, 617 million dollars by only 559 million dollars.

The above reduction in the corporation taxes But though I remember all this, would meet Mr. McDougall's objections that the it is with the thing she could do, tax was stifling industry. At the same time, the so superlatively that I associate Attlee and Truman. The latter halved personal income tax would continue to her. provide revenue and still adhere to the principle of taxing according to the ability to pay. As to to me strongly the other day his objection that Canadian enterprise would reorganize into publicly-owned concerns, it is questionable whether corporations would willingly give up their independence of action in order to escape taxation.

ATOMIC FOOTNOTE

Last week's issue of the Financial Post adds a cautious footnote to speculation on the use of atomic energy. The Post sees little immediate use of the tremendous energy which has been released from the atom. In a few years, it is quite possible that a steam engine driven by atomic rest of us. There is another power will be developed but, the article points cousin whom I never see without, "it will be a much longer time before an out hearing strains from Choefficient and practical machine can be expected.'

The Financial Post sums up the future prospects of atomic energy as follows:

Atomic power holds no immediate threat to us-whether of good or ill is up will like to contact? present sources of industrial power. Even when production of power from atomic energy is possible, it appears to be permanently limited to stationary power plants or very large ships. Atomic power in "capsule" form for automobiles or aircraft is presently inconceivable. Future industrial applications may quite possibly be in fields not now within the range of human knowledge or ideas.

The article goes on to say, however, that within the year, abundant supplies of new, cheap, radio-active materials, produced as a by-product in the release of atomic energy, will be available to medical science. But the article warns that enlarging of the water works will hold its first fall meeting on "it will take possibly a decade to realize the full advantage of these new materials, chiefly because it will take that long to train men to use them."

In Passing

Only 65 percent of farm youth have vacations, as against 88 percent of city youth. This fact is revealed in a survey made by the sub-committee on Recreation of the Canadian Youth Commis-

The major factor determining length of vacation is whether the young person is attending school or working. For half of the young people at work the vacation period is two weeks or less. Fifty-two percent of young people in the highest income bracket have a vacation of one month or longer, as compared with 13 percent of those in Ontario St. the lowest income bracket.

What Others Think

SERIOUS LABOR SITUATION

(Huntsville Forester)

Surveys of war plant workers show unmistakably that women workers, who have made an important contribution to war production, will desire to continue in some form of industrial employment. A New York state survey showed that 82 percent of the women employed on war contracts expressed intention to continue in some form of employment. A Washington dispatch states that over two million workers had been laid off in war plants since V-J Day.

The task before the government and before local communities, of seeking employment for both men and women, becomes at once complicated and baffling.

Can jobs be found for this vast army of out-ofworks, including many thousands of women? Assurances that "jobs will be found for all" at once becomes a realistic problem, and one doubts that the governments and communities are ready to face it. Certainly visible signs that all is in readiness are lacking.

We have championed in Canada the general principle that there must be equal opportunities daughter are spending a month for men and women. But there is, afterall, a dis- in Woodstock. tinction to be drawn when the problem of employment is to be solved. The old theory that the women's place is in the home cannot be completely abandoned. Thousands of housewives have joined their husbands, under an acute national crisis, to maintain the national output in war materials. Should the future status of labor not be rendered secure enough to permit these at Bradford. married women to now return to their homes and resume their rightful places as home-makers?

If the national economy is to be so adjusted that the wage level will be maintained on a priority with the war period, a restoration of high standards of family life, with ample opportunity for educational privileges for the children of the workers and the enjoyment of opportunities for better social conditions should be possible and the need for dual employment removed. The home is the basis of national life and the ideal home, through which family life is possible on a high standard, must depend upon the regularity of employment of the head of the house, with a wage sufficient to maintain his wife and family in security and comfort. When this is reached and family life becomes once more the bulwark of society, there will neither be the need nor the desire for women to move outside their natural sphere, which is the home, and shoulder responsibility for the guarantee of economic and social needs.

In Letter To Veterans

In a letter dated in Holland, Cpl. E. M. Carter writes his thanks to the Newmarket Veterans' Association Comforts Fund for cigarets he has recently received. "We are only temporarily stationed here while our formation breaks up and the personnel is dispersed to other units and some to repatriation depots," he says. "It is rather hard to say goodbye to those with whom you have been associated in the Allied progress across Europe to victory. However, each move is a step nearer home.

"We'll all have our memories, some pleasant and others unpleasant but among the most pleasant will be those of the days when we received those ever welcome cartons of cigarets from you at home."

From Amersfoort, Holland, comes a letter written by Pte. R. E. McDonald thanking the Veterans for the cigarets sent him. "Through the thoughtfulness of those at home we are made to feel that we have not entirely lost contact with Canada and those things which in Canada you take for granted but which are luxuries to us," he writes.

Gnr. Ken Johns in his letter to the veterans says that his old regiment has been disbanded and rumor has it that he will be home by Christmas. "So here's hoping," he adds. LAC L. R. Willis, stationed in the British Isles, tells the veterans of the trips he has been making but finds time to concern himself with the future. "I understand there is a terrific housing shortage back home. Here's hoping it can be cleared up quickly. Most of us never had a chance to set up a home before going into the service and that is one of our main post-war tasks. However, we feel sure that everything possible will be done to alleviate the situation."

Cards and letters of thanks were received by the Newmarket Veterans' Association from Ptc. J. H. Lister, Ptc. L. W. Waller, Sgmn. W. C. Hopper, Ptc. W. W. Young, Cdr. Bruce Gould, L-Cpl. Bruce Townsley, Cpl. H. A. Evans, Cpl. K. H. Mitchell.

Policyholder

WHEN DISCUSSING life insurance with two of my friends who are fathers of young children, I found that they were particularly interested in learning that I own a policy in The Mutual Life of Canada called 'FAMILY INCOME,' which will provide an income of $100 a month for my wife at my death. This income will continue until I would have been 65 had

I lived, and then, she will receive $10,000. "OF COURSE, I have made sure, through another policy in The Mutual Life, that she will also have a certain amount in eash with which to pay bills and to provide a reserve fund for emergencies.

"I DISCOVERED during our conversation that these fathers were not aware that it was possible to obtain a policy with the benefits provided by the Family Income contract, and both of them have now interviewed my Mutual Life representative, whom I recommended to them, and discovered how the policy will fit into their insurance programs."

Hare a Mutual Life representative explain the special features of this Company . . . and let him arrange a Family Income policy for you, or whatever policy may be suitable for your particular circumstances.

This year, production directives have again been issued to the textiles industry. They are intended to divert output to more essential goods. But directives alone cannot cure a situation prising from world conditions.

The answer lies in conservation. More than ever, the need is to conserve, to take care of what there is, to mend, make-over and make-do.

SPORT SHORTS

By ORVILLE GANTON

After a long season of competition, it is still difficult to say which is the better girls' team, Orioles or Cardinals. Cardinals were front runners in early season then Orioles improved their hitting to capture the semifinals. Now they are at it hammer and tongs again in the final series.

The army girls were a little out-classed but considering the few girls they had to draw from, they made a very creditable showing indeed. Capt. Caswell and his little band deserve a big hand for their contribution to the success of the league. Schroder and her buddies were always in there battling regardless of results.

"Chuck" VanZant's oldtimers and the midget all-stars staged a snappy six-inning game last Friday. With Broughton hurling, the young fellows were out in front 2-1 at the end of the third. Gunn then sent in young "Normie" Stunden and the old boys

Make Repairs Instead

Having advertised for tenders for the construction of a bridge on the sixth concession line, which were to be opened Aug. 31, council met at that date instead of the regular meeting date a week later. All members were present.

Communications were read from Ontario Rural Municipal Association, report of annual convention; from Ford Lapp, school attendance report for June; from tax collector reporting arrears as follows: 1943 taxes, $162.91, and for 1944, $1,607: Hydro contracts of Dewey Graham and Edmund Hall were accepted.

Only one tender for the bridge to be built on the sixth concession line at the end of Leaskdale consideration, it was decided to thought more contractors would be in position to undertake such work later on.

To Outline New Quotas At Red Cross Meeting

Aurora Red Cross will hold an LIBRARY important meeting in the Aurora post office Friday, Sept. 7, at 8 p.m. Despite the fact the war holds a specialists certificate in quota for Aurora which must be met. The re-organization of the work rooms, closed for the summer, and the planning of future work will be made at this meeting, and the president, Dr. E. J. Henderson, and his executive are anxious for a large audience.

Export constitutes about 35% of Canada's egg business. Canadian poultrymen, in post-war export of eggs, enjoy certain very definite advantages such as unsurpassed quality in shell and dried eggs; good possibilities of a permanent Grozen egg market; and the benefits of scientific progress which may create new products even better than frozen eggs.

In this programme every agricultural college and experi-: caental station will play an important part, offering an up-to-Jate service of practical, helpful information, for the asking.

The Bank of Toronto offers enterprising poultrymen the service of money. Now, as during the past 90 years, this Bank's experienced, friendly branch managers are ready and willing to aid responsible farmers with loans.

THAT JACK WROTE ...

this is the Branch Bank where Jack keeps his moneyso he does not have to keep his savings at home with the danger of loss, fire, or theft, and can pay bills safely and conveniently by cheque.

this is the Teller in a branch of a different bank in another city, who made sure that the man who presented the cheque was really the man Jack intended to pay. Then he added the amount of the cheque to that man's deposit account.

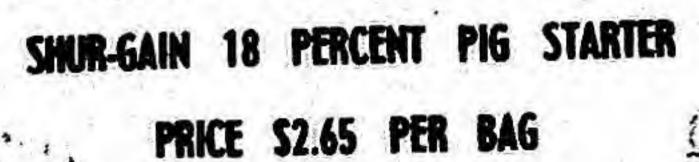

this is the Clearing House maintained by the banks so that customers' cheques can be exchanged and the banks can settle their accounts with one another every day. From here, Jack's cheque was sent to the clearing department of his own bank, and from there to the branch where Jack keeps his account.

this is the Ledger-Keeper who made sure that the signature was really Jack's. Then he debited Jack's account. The amount is entered in Jack's passbook next time he comes in, so he always knows exactly where he stands.

This is a sketchy outline of what happens when you pay an out-of-town bill by cheque. Many people pay their large local bills that way too. To be able to pay by cheque is a tremendous convenience which costs you little or nothing. Banks are the bookkeepers for millions of your fellow-Canadians,
